Photo Courtesy: CNBC/YouTube Behind every successful company is a powerful CEO. These people are at the top of their game when it comes to getting the job done, but with so much of being thrown at them all at once, these business men and women also know a thing or two about staying relaxed. These CEOs have the nicest homes around. Find out how decadent life can be when running a multi-million dollar or multi-million dollar company. Known as the “Queen of All Media”, Oprah Winfrey has been a dominant force since 1986. In 2008, Winfrey started its own cable network, The Oprah Winfrey Network, which reaches over 80 million families. Photo Courtesy: Variety/YouTube Winfrey owns seven homes, but his main residence is in Montecito, California. Purchased in 2001, the property features a large garden, which includes a tea room and sculptures, and a specialised reading room. Even though this room has a string of books, Winfrey doesn't like guests touching them. In 2004, Mark Zuckerberg launched Facebook as a way for college students to connect. Over time, the social media platform has grown into a huge force with 2.5 billion users. In 2007 he became the youngest self-produced billionaire ever at the age of 23. Photo Courtesy: Silicon Slopes/YouTube Zuckerberg stays close to his work with a villa in Menlo Park, California, for which he paid $7 million in 2011. It includes a huge swimming pool in the courtyard and a sunbathing room. There's also a back office for Zuckerberg when he's thinking about late at night. If that doesn't sound decadent enough, he also spent $100 million on a piece of land in Hawaii, where he plans to build a house. In 1984, Michael Dell launched Dell to distribute some of the best computers on the planet. Since its launch, Dell has grown to have 157,000 employees under its roof and a current equity of $90.6 million. In 2016, the company merged with EMC Corporation to become Dell Technologies Inc. Photo Courtesy: SXSW/YouTube When Dell is on vacation, he goes to his huge home in Kukio, Hawaii. Also known as the Raptor Residence, this holiday home has 7 bedrooms and 12 bathrooms. The villa is worth 62 million dollars, but most of its value comes from the land on which it is located. With the help of Steve Wozniak, Steve Jobs founded Apple in 1976. While Jobs was kicked out of the company in 1985, he returned as CEO in 1997. During his time as CEO, he brought high-impact devices and services like iTunes and iPhone to the world. Photo Courtesy: Matt Buchanan/Wikimedia In the mid-1990s, Jobs bought his villa in Palo Alto, California. The property has seven bedrooms and four bathrooms. What makes this property special is that Jobs It made it stand out from the rest of the houses on the block. Living in a more ordinary place seemed to cheer him up. Larry Ellison got his foot in the computer software industry as co-founder of Oracle Corporation in 1977. In 2012, he became the third richest American in the world with a net worth of $44 $44 In 2018 he became director of Tesla Inc. Photo Courtesy: USC/YouTube Ellison has a glamorous mansion along Lake Tahoe for his work getaway which includes a hot tub, a cinema and a waterfall. For visitors, the property has a huge 1,324 square foot guest house. Altogether, the villa is worth $28.5 million. Jack Dorsey is engaged as CEO of two large companies. As co-founder of Twitter, he assumed the role of CEO in 2015. Meanwhile, in 2010, he co-founded and became CEO of the mobile payment company Square, Inc., which earned $3.30 billion in 2018. Photo Courtesy: Wired/YouTube Dorsey lives well in a 37,000-square-foot home in San Francisco. In addition to stunning views of the Golden Gate Bridge, this two-bedroom home includes a 20-foot retractable glass roof. The CEO managed to take this home for $10 million, which was less than the original price offered. There's no CEO out there more intriguing, or antagonistic, to the press than Elon Musk. The South African founded SpaceX in 2002 to help colonize Mars. The following year he founded Tesla, Inc. to bring more electric vehicles on the road. Musk has a net worth of $40 billion. Photo courtesy: TED/YouTube Musk chose Bel Air, California as his main city, and his 20,000-square-foot residence has everything he could want. The property has an indoor cinema, a large swimming pool and a tennis court. This property is currently worth $18 million. Charles Simonyi is best known for creating the first Microsoft Office installation in 1990. In 2002 he founded Intentional Software, which helps programmers and designers build software. In 2017, it reunited with Microsoft when Intentional Software was acquired by the company. Photo Courtesy: Stanford University School of Engineering/YouTube Simonyi's villa in Medina, Washington will forever be known as the home of Windows 2000. The property got the name because it houses 2,000 windows. Inside the house, Simony shows paintings by Victor Vasarely and Roy Lichtenstein. Satya Nadella joined Microsoft in 1992, where she leads several projects. After holding several important positions, he was appointed CEO of the company in 2014. His impact on business earned him the title of Person of the Year by The Financial Times in 2019. Photo Courtesy: Stanford Graduate School of Business/YouTube In 2000, Nadella bought her home in Seattle for almost $1.4 million. The property features a kitchen, a guest room, an office and a beautiful view of Lake Washington and the Seattle skyline. Currently the property is worth 3.5 million dollars. Tim Cook helped Apple expand into the new millennium as senior vice president for global operations. After the death of Steve Jobs, it is CEO of the company in 2011. Cook is also on the board of directors for the popular footwear company Nike. Photo courtesy: Stanford/YouTube Cook is not one to have a sumptuous mansion away from society. In 2010 he bought his Palo Alto, California condo condo Almost 2 million. The property has only four bedrooms and a small yard for hangouts with friends. Its house is located a few steps from local shops and restaurants. In 2011, Evan Spiegel co-founded Snapchat while attending Stanford University. The app, which is part of Snap Inc., has become an immediate success with young people around the world with 210 million users. In 2018, Spiegel graduated in Stanford after taking time as CEO of Snap Inc. Photo Courtesy: TechCrunch/YouTube Spiegel and the wife of the top model Miranda Kerr bought a palace in Brentwood, California. The property, originally owned by Harrison Ford, includes a swimming pool, a gym and a library. Kerr and Spiegel held their wedding ceremony in the place of return in 2017. Larry Page co-founded Google with Sergey Brin in 1998. He became CEO of the company, but came out of position in 2001. A decade later, he recovered the first place until his second release from the company in 2015. After leaving Google, he became CEO of parent company Alphabet Inc. Photo Courtesy: Leena Buban/YouTube In 2005, Page purchased his Palo Alto, California home for $7 million. A villa wasn't enough, though. Years later, he created a new ecological building. This place has a magnificent roof garden and solar panels. Page's main house is currently worth $14 million. Marissa Mayer had a hand in developing Google's popular properties such as Google News, Google Product Search and Google Maps. In 2012, he became CEO of Yahoo!, and one of his most obvious results was helping to purchase the Tumblr company. Photo Courtesy: Greylock Partners/YouTube Mayer spends a quiet time at his home in Palo Alto, California. One of Mayer's most intriguing additions to the house is a 15-foot local diner model, the Peninsula Creamery, in its courtyard. The interior of the place also has a computer-driven baby piano and a bronze frog statue. Travis Kalanick helped make the city tour easier as Uber co-founder. Before that, the native Los Angeles founded peer-to-peer file sharing company Scour and Red Swoosh. In 2018, he started a venture capital fund called 10100, which helps the growth of work in the country. Photo Courtesy: TED/YouTube Kalanick recently purchased a duplex penthouse in New York City for a surprising $36.5 million. While the house includes only 6,734 square feet, there are additional 3,400 square feet outdoor for any additions. Kalanick can reach the place with a private elevator. In 1983, John Chambers joined Cisco Systems when he was a new company. In 1995, he became CEO after a four-year term as senior vice president of operations worldwide. His time with the company put him on the list of the 25 most powerful of CNN. PhotosChurchill Club/YouTube When it's time to freshen up after work, Chambers head to his villa in Los Altos Hills, California. The property includes five bedrooms, a tennis court and a fitness center. Rooms put 8,280 square feet place for sale$15 million cool. Tom Proulx has changed the panorama of financial software forever as co-founder of Intuit. During his time in the company, he was the main programmer for the Quicken financial management tool. In 1995, Proulx joined the Netpulse fitness technology company as CEO. He remained with the company until 2018. Photo Courtesy: Computer History Museum/YouTube When it comes to living, Proulx decided to go great with his home Athertron, California, which includes 11 acres of land and three buildings. You don't know much about this property except its total value is $111 million. The most expensive building alone is worth $5.9 million. As CEO of eMeter, Gary Bloom has contributed to providing high-quality smart network management software for companies worldwide. In 2012, he jumped to the NoSQL database provider MarkLogic as their current CEO. Bloom was previously an executive of Oracle Corporation for 14 years. Photo Courtesy: MarkLogic/YouTube Bloom returns home to Atherton, California, when the day is over. The property has four bedrooms and six bathrooms. His house, which is a stunning 8,500 square meters, is currently worth $15.5 million. Mark Pincus brought some of the biggest games on cell phones like the founder of Zynga. His work as CEO earned him the title of CEO of the year at the Crunchies Awards 2009. The current equity of the Chicago native is $1.54 billion. Photo Courtesy: Slush/YouTube Pincus lives in his villa in San Francisco with his wife Alison. Before Pincus intervened, the property was from the Jane Newhall philanthropist. While a fireplace is enough for most people, this property includes an impressive eight. The four-storey house also includes an elevator for convenience. Together with his brother Norm Jr., Ted Waitt founded Gateway Inc. As CEO, he brought a low-end computer skewer to consumers. Waitt resigned as CEO in 2005 after 20 years. He currently works for the Waitt Foundation, which he founded. Photo Courtesy: Waitt Foundation/YouTube Waitt spends most of his time in Los Angeles, so it is right that he has a huge villa in the city. While most villas include a pool, Waitt's is covered with LED lights. The property also includes an outdoor kitchen and a sauna. As CEO of T-Mobile, John Legere amplified the image of the company with the popular Un-carrier campaign. Before T-Mobile, the native of Massachusetts worked for AT&T for almost 20 years. He announced his intention to resign as CEO in 2020, but remain in the board of directors. Photo Courtesy: T-Mobile/YouTube Legere spends his time in his villa in Naples, Florida. The property has a 400 bottles cellar, a systembuilt-in security and a private elevator. Legere bought the villa for $16.7 million. Before that, he lived in a penthouse in New York. In 1990, Ken Griffin founded the investment company Citadel with the help of $4.6 million from fellow investor Frank Meyer. As CEO, he donated millions to Chicago Art Institute and Field Museum of Natural History. Currently, Griffin has a net worth of $9 billion. Photo Courtesy: Citadel/YouTube In 2019, Griffin purchased a penthouse in New York City for $238 million, making it the most expensive home ever sold in the United States. With Citadel branching out into the Big Apple, Griffin needed a place to stay. While the original purchase was for four floors, he purchased more two weeks later. After creating the Krawlers children's clothing company, Adam Neumann started WeWork with his wife Rebekah. The company was founded to help entrepreneurs work together through shared workspaces. After nine years with the company, Neumann resigned as CEO of WeWork in 2019. Photo Courtesy: WeWork/YouTube In 2018, Neumann sold $21 million for a villa in Marin County, California. The previous owner was Bill Graham, music promoter, who worked with iconic artists such as Huey Lewis and The Grateful Dead. The property has a lounge suitably shaped like a guitar. Stephen Ross dreamed of making affordable housing a brighter reality. With the help of his mother, he founded the Compagnie Correlate in 1972. In 2012, he resigned as CEO, but is still president and 60% owner. Photo Courtesy: Harvard GSD/YouTube Ross has called his apartment in the Time Warner Center home for years. The property includes a golf simulator room, which was installed for Ross to get some training swings. He also hired interior designer Tony Ingrao, best known for his work on the interiors of 35 Hudson Yards. In 2005, Bob Iger was appointed CEO of Disney, and has his work cut out for him. Fortunately, he was able to help the company acquire Pixar, Lucasfilm, Marvel Entertainment and 20th Century Fox. Before Disney, Iger was head of ABC Entertainment. Photo Courtesy: Disney Parks/YouTube Iger's apartment in New York has a beautiful view of Central Park's Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis reservoir. This sumptuous property is accessed via a private elevator. The four-bedroom apartment features, among other things, a library, a luxury laundry room and a sumptuous walk-in closet. The property is worth $18.75 million. Paul Allen co-founded Microsoft with Bill Gates, but Hodgkin's lymphoma forced him to resign in 1983. Three years later he founded Vulcan Inc. with his sister Jody. Allen owns not only one but two basketball teams, the Seattle Seahawks and the Portland Trail Blazers. Photo Courtesy: GeekWire/YouTube Allen couldn't help but own a property. In addition to homes in France and Malibu, he also has a complex on Mercer Island, Washington. There's six buildings in all, but Allen didn't take them for himself. He gave five to the members of the so they could all be together. As co-founder of Silicon Graphics, Jim Clark produced some intense special effects for Hollywood movies. After leaving the company in 1994, he co-founded the Netscape web browser with Marc Andreessen. Andreessen. He became a film producer with The Cove of 2009, which focuses on dolphin hunting in Japan. Photo Courtesy: This Week In Startups/YouTube Clark calls Southampton, New York his home, where he has his 9-acre Linden Estate. It includes a soccer field, paddleball field and tennis court. The villa's equity is $50 million. Peter Thiel turned the payments on their heads when he co-founded PayPal in 1999. The West German native remained with the company as CEO until 2002. After PayPal, he was president of the hedge fund Clarium Capital and a member of the board of directors of Facebook. Photo Courtesy: Eric Weinstein/YouTube Thiel's home in San Francisco, California, purchased in 2011, is just steps away from the Palace of Fine Arts. It also offers easy access to the nearby ocean. With a myriad of balconies, it's not a bad place to see the magnificent views of the city. After a short stint with Novell as CEO, Eric Schmidt tried his luck with Google. From 2001 to 2011 he was CEO of the company. He remained executive president until 2015. Schmidt is currently Chairman of the Defense Innovation Advisory Board of the Department of Defense. Photo Courtesy: The Jordan Harbinger Show/YouTube Schmidt's California home has been linked to celebrities. She bought the property from Ellen DeGeneres, and allowed Kim Kardashian to celebrate her wedding there with Kris Humphries. The property has large gardens, a wellness centre and a tennis court. Microsoft co-founder Bill Gates is one of the most influential names in technology. Outside the technology world, Gates collaborates with his wife with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. Gates' current equity is 112.8 million, making him the second richest person in the world. Photo Courtesy: Bill Gates/YouTube Gates' home in Medina, Washington is known as Xanadu 2.0. The property has heated floors and an underwater music system. Among other luxuries, visitors to the house wear pins that control which music is played according to their mood. Until 2020, Jeff Bezos was the richest man in the world. In 1994 he founded Amazon, which was initially exclusively a book market. In the end, the company became the largest online marketplace of all time. In 2013, Bezos acquired the Washington Post. Photo Courtesy: Amazon Prime Video India/YouTube Bezos dropped $165 million on a villa in Los Angeles, California. The nine-acre property was originally created by Hollywood movie icon Jack Warner and includes a golf course for Bezos to relieve stress. It's the most expensive mansion in town.
