Phonics, spelling, reading and writing games, worksheets, flash cards, PowerPoints and interactive activities. An apostrofe can be used to mark lost cards where two or more words have been 'contracted', for example it is not made. Possessive apostrofes are used to show where one thing or group belongs to another. When the thing or group belongs to a singular noun or an irregular plural, the apostrofe goes before the s. For example, Jack's tie, the car wheel, Mr's house. Smith. Where the group or thing belongs to a regular plural (end in s), the apostrofe goes after the s. For example, the books of girls (books belonging to a group of girls), the field of cows (the field belonging to a group of cows). Knowing the difference between the parts of speech helps children learn how prayers are joined and understanding the blocks of vocabulary and writing. Word Game Time offers plenty of free grammatical resources to help children learn about nouns, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, pronouns, interjections, conjunctions and prepositions. Through our free games, videos and worksheets, children in kindergarten through the seventh grade will learn to recognize the different parts of the discourse and how to use them to build prayers. You will also find some mixed score lessons. Word Game Time resources include sticky songs, fun editing activities and exciting grammar games to build your skills.
