Paragraph Conclusion (about 75 words) Restatement of thesis Essay summary Contact Us We will write a personalized essay on Who I Am based on some details you will provide. From only $16 $12/page Who am I Essay Example 1 Who am I? Describing yourself is one of the most complicated tasks. In most cases, we always define ourselves using institutions, other people or activities. Well, I know a lot about myself I am a kind, friendly, respectful and principle. First, I am a sociable person. I like to meet people and make new new ones It's not like I'm an extortion. However, I always work to get along with people. Of course, there are times when I like to be alone for meditation. Still, being around people makes me feel comfortable. I like to use every opportunity to make new friends. Interacting with people from different parts of the world makes me a different person. I am one of those people who believe that there is wealth in human diversity. I'm not selective enough as to who I socialize with. A cheerful, friendly and accommodating person is how many people know me. Secondly, I am kind and respectful. Well, I appreciate that there is a fine line between being social and respectful. I want to treat everyone "junior or senior- with the utmost reverence. In this regard, I am rather a listener. This did not start yesterday, I have always loved giving up my seats to the elders on the train since I was young. Once again, I am still and at the same time polite. I love making my points in a way that has not hurt those around me. No. I always want to be respectful even to those who least deserve it. Being respectful doesn't take anything away from me after all. Thirdly, I have a great affection for playing teams. Well, I've probably had this stretch of my life as an athlete. I was a school captain on Team Handball and Badminton. Today, I still play these games as a coach. I'm a chess player, and I could be a grandfather in the next few months. Sports and competitions have trained me to be fair, diligent, laborious and focused. Like my hobby, chess clears my head while athletics makes me healthy. I definitely don't tell who I am without mentioning sportsmanship. In fact, sports define me to a large extent. I'm not perfect, though. I can be moody when I haven't hit my targets. My love of novelty makes me uncomfortable with normal rules. My mom. that I am selfish and that I always want everything to go my way. Yet, I'm still the person you'll find doing volunteer community work to helpI guess my self-esteem is too high to be knocked down. This will steal feathers with anyone on the road to success. I'd be a liar if I said I'm a genius, impeccable or immortal - and that á.s who I am. Anyway, it might be a little difficult to explain who I am. However, there are qualities that are a complete description of me. Respect, principles, sports and leadership are some of them. As a fast student, I like to change every behavior that makes me a better person. The desire to be good with everyone has made me what I am today and I intend to keep it this way. The second example on how to write a essay about you I give a description of myself in relation to my family background, personality, and how I see life. My family background revolves around the strong Christian faith, since my parents are faithful Roman faithful faithful faithful faithful faithful faithful. I was born in Chicago, Illinois 21 years ago and I am the third born in a family of four children. I am a woman of African-American origin and I am very proud of my cultural background and family values. Like my parents, I developed the habit and routine of going to church every Sunday in line with Christian doctrines. Actually, all my family members appreciate participating in Sunday masses wherever they are. I grew up in a family of working parents and grew up in harmony with my brothers. As for my personality, I'm a person who's snapping and loves socializing and making new friends. The number of friends I have in college is unbeatable because I have no boundaries when it comes to building relationships. Nevertheless, I appreciate respect and I think it's two ways. I expect anyone who interacts with me to show me the same level of respect that I show them regardless of their context or status in society. I'm working hard because my parentsThey taught me to detest laziness because it is the beginning of poverty and miserable life. For me, respect and hard work Hand in hand. Working hard with respect has opened many doors in my life so far. My vision of life is that all human beings are equal regardless of their cultural, racial, religious and gender background. That's why I have friends with different cultural and other backgrounds. I am also a liberal because I am open to learning new things like new cultures, religions and even languages. For example, I can speak French and Spanish fluently but I am American. I also believe that we must tolerate divergent views, as this helps to strengthen human diversity. My parents once tried to stop me from being too open-minded, but I insisted. In my opinion, being open to the new means being accommodating to human diversity. To conclude, I can sum myself up as someone who is respectful, accommodating and open-minded. I realize that, as a human being, I need others to complete my life. When I show that I care and accept different points of view, I find it easy to work with others. I was able to avoid suffering from any form of racial or cultural profiling because people find me easy to treat. I believe that my personality and my worldviews match and so I find life more sociable and interesting. I intend to continue to lead this fulfilling life. Second example of a pattern to follow when writing a personal essay Introduction I give a description of myself in relation to my family background, my personality and my outlook on life. Body Paragraph 1: Family context revolves around a strong Christian faith as my parents are faithful Catholics I was born in Chicago, Illinois 21 years ago and am the third born into a family of four children. I am a woman of African American descent and I am very proud of my background and my family values Paragraph 2: My personality I am outspoken and I like to socialize and make new friends I appreciate respect and believe in two ways that I work hard Paragraph 3: My of life All human beings are equal regardless of their cultural, racial and religious background, as well as gender are liberal as they are open to learning new things such as new cultures, religions, and also languages Different opinions should be tolerated Conclusion I can summarize myself as someone who is respectful, accommodating, and open-minded. I appreciate that as a human, I need others for my life to be complete. I believe that my personality and vision of the world are the same and therefore I find life more sociable and interesting. As a person, I feel growing over the years has changed significantly who I am. I had to see and experience many things that I could not see in my childhood. I also met many different people and visited many places. Some of the perspectives I held on people and certain things have certainly changed. In addition, I have experienced a significant personal growth that has also seen my personality transform. I too have become more decisive in my actions and in my relationships with others. I am a faithful Christian who is open, friendly and action-oriented. Despite being Christian, I am open to the ways of worship of others and, in general, to the way of life and to the opinions of others. I can listen and understand what others say and treat it as their opinion to which they are entitled whether they agree or not. In this way, I was able to learn a lot from others and broaden my vision of life and humanity. I am also able to live among people of different cultures. However, I do not allow other people's opinions or cultures to influence my own, as much as I can be accommodating to them. This because © I think the world has enough room for everyone to practice their cultures and share their opinions without interfering with others. I a friendly person who appreciates friendship. Since my childhood, I have developed the habit of forming strong friendships both in neighborhood and school. I brought this habit to my adult age and I have a large number of friends from different backgrounds because © I don't choose friends based on their cultural origins. However, I believe in true friendship and as soon as I discover that one is not a true friend, I leave them. For me, a friend should be like a family that is always present for one in their best and tough days and times. From this conviction, I have helped a number of friends both inside and outside school and shared with them some of my most intimate secrets. I too have benefited from the loyalty of these friendships. Furthermore, I follow my decisions and my promises with actions because I believe that it is through actions that we can solve their problems and achieve their life goals. This virtue has helped me realize many of my life's efforts especially in my academic life. For example, since my middle school level, I have decided not to consume television content during exams, but to concentrate on exams as much as possible. I have kept this decision and have therefore posted good votes for everything because © I always have time to prepare for exams. I also know that keeping promises is one of the best ways to keep relationships alive. I usually do whatever it takes to keep a promise no matter who I make it to. I also keep a simple promise like that to sharpen my younger sister's pencil mark every morning before she goes to school. Conclusion I am an open Christian who appreciates relationships and I act on my decisions and promises. I am sympathetic to different opinions and opinions even when they are clearly contrary to mine. I pursue my life goals and maintain relationships through action. I also have many friends since I believe that true friendship is very beneficial for humans. This personality and these values allow me to a fulfilling life as I am able to achieve my goals and at the same time live in harmony with others. others. 3 Description Introduction Thesis: I am a faithful Christian who is open-minded, friendly and oriented to action. Body Paragraph 1: Although I am a faithful Christian, I am open to the ways of worship of others and in general to the way of life and the opinions of others. I can listen and understand what others say and consider it their right, whether I agree or not. I can live among people of different cultures. However, I do not allow other people's opinions or cultures to influence mine. Paragraph 2: I am a friendly person who appreciates friendship very much. I have a habit of forming strong friendships both in our neighborhood and at school. I have a number of friends of various origins because © I don't choose friends based on their cultural background. I believe in true friendship and as soon as I realize that one is not a true friend, I let them go. Paragraph 3: I follow my decisions and my promises with actions, because © I believe that it is through actions that we can solve their problems and achieve their life goals. I stick to my decisions once I've made them. I have been able to accomplish many of the efforts of my life, especially in my academic life. I also know that keeping promises is one of the best ways to keep relationships alive and healthy. I usually do whatever it takes to keep a promise, no matter who I make it to. Conclusion I am an open-minded Christian who values relationships and acts on my decisions and promises. I am comfortable with different opinions and points of view even when they are in stark contrast to mine. I pursue my life goals and maintain relationships through action. Action.
