Recep Tayyip Erdoan indir ve à arkñ sixty. Ecilenista gÃ1â4rsesidir o Suskun dÃ1â4nyanñn hrsesidir o Gérndâ4nn miletten alan Recep Tayyip ErdoÃan Halkñn ad AÃ A,  $Hakk\hat{A} \pm n\hat{a}\hat{A} \pm A\hat{A} \pm A\hat{A}$ Turkey, Recep Tayyip Erdogan, is very angry with German yes on Tuesday, he even called the German ambassador to his office to complain. But about what? Syria, maybe? Or Europe's handling of the refugee crisis? Naw. It was a satirical YouTube video, produced by a German state network, mocking Erdogan. Here's the video that offended the delicate sensitivity of the Turkish leader, now with useful English subtitles: The song, a riff of an old German pop song, mocks the appearance of Erdogan, his ostentatious palace and, most importantly, his sad a record of press freedom and civil rights. "Equal Rights for Women / Beaten Equal", reads the lyrics, sung over images of the Turkish police interrupting an International Women's Day march with batons. For most heads of state, this would not be something you would need to shout at a foreign dignitary. But Erdogan is not just any head of state: the Turkish president is often described as thin-skinned, and has a record to prove it. According to a 2015 BBC report, 236 people in Turkey were investigated, between August 2014 and March 2015, for "insulting the head of state", a crime under Turkish law punishable by years in prison. Of these, 105 were indicted and 8 arrested. Some of these are really absurd. In 2014, Erdogan Erdogan a teacher who he thought had made a "rude gesture" to her. After she complained about her publicly, she was arrested for insulting the president. In January 2016, she was sentenced to 11 months and 20 days in prison. In another case, a Turkish doctor was arrested for making a meme comparing Erdogan to Gollum. Turkish courts had to call on "Gollum experts" to assess whether this was insulting. Here's the meme, in case you're curious about whether Erdogan really resembles Gollum (the answer, IMHO, is clearly yes): If all this sounds petty, it certainly is. But the biggest problem, which the video points to, is that Turkey under Erdogan has been slowly sliding towards authoritarianism. During its tenure, the Turkish government has tried to "reform" the Turkish school system along Islamist lines, violently repressed anti-government protests and temporarily banned Twitter to prevent it from threatening "moral and national values". "Comparisons with Vladimir Putin are useful", wrote the Last year Howard Eissenstat, a Turkish scholar at the University of San Lorenzo. "Both Erdogan and Putin rely on the institution of elections as a tool to demonstrate legitimacy, and both assure that no sustained criticism of their policies will reach the public". As funny as Erdogan's idea may be, shouting at the German ambassador for a cover in the style of The strange parody, it is worth pointing out that this episode reflects something deeply troubling about politics in one of the largest and most important Muslim countries in the world. President Isaac Herzog spoke on the phone with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan on Thursday, hours after an Israeli couple arrested last week in Istanbul on suspicion of espionage landed in Israel. Erdogan stressed in the conversation that he considers that the ties with Israel are important for his country «Of key importance to peace, stability and safety of the Middle East.» Media. » Dialogue between countries on bilateral and regional issues, according to a statement by the Office of the President of Israel. Herzog welcomed the idea. Herzog, speaking in English, thanked his counterpart for his personal involvement in the release of Mordy and Natali Oknin, who were arrested in Istanbul last Tuesday after they photographed Erdogan's Palace in Istanbul while he was on tour and sent the photos of the palace. Israel firmly and formally rejected the accusation that the Oknins, who are the bus drivers for the released company, are spies. Natali had appeared in egg advertising campaigns over the terms once near Allies of Defense, the two regional powers saw that relations crumble in the last decade. However, during the past year, Erdogan and other Turkish officials have expressed a desire to repair the ties, as Ankara is increasingly cashier by rivals in Europe and the Eastern Mediterranean. In July, Erdogan congratulated Herzog on his new role as President of Israel, and similarly pointed out the importance of relations between the two countries for the sake of regional stability. A spokesperson for Erdogan's AKP party said that, at the root of the call, a "framework" emerged to improve the links between Ankara and Jerusalem. Natali Oknin, who was held with her husband in Turkey for a week on suspicion of espionage, is received upon arrival at her home in the Israeli city of Modiin on November 18, 2021 after Its launch (Gil Cohen-Magen / AFP) "We want to thank all the people of Israel who supported our country and their family. Thanks to Prime Minister Naftali Bennett, Minister of Foreign Affairs Yair Lapid, President Isaac Herzog, Ã ¢ Â, ¬, said he said Oknin at a press conference outside the family home in the city of Modiin after eight days of detention. Previously, a joint statement from Bennett and Lapid announcing their release grateful to Erdogan. "We thank the President of Turkey and his government for their cooperation and look forward to welcoming the couple back home", the statement said, adding that Herzog had also contributed significantly to efforts to end the incident. According to reports, Bennett was prepared to talk to Erdogan on Thursday by phone also to thank him for the launch of the pair. Prime Minister Naftali Bennett (R) is with Foreign Minister Yair Lapid during the weekly cabinet meeting at the Prime Minister's office in Jerusalem on November 7, 2021. (Gil Cohen-MAGEN / POOL / AFP) The Ministry of Foreign Affairs sent a Jet, along with two senior consular officials, to return the couple and they arrived in Israel shortly after 6 am, headed to their home in Modiin, where they were greeted by a crowd of relatives and supporters, many of whom wore T-shirts. Printed with a photograph of the couple. In Turkey, the husband and wife were held separately and were given intermittent access to an Israeli lawyer and Israeli consular officers. The delicate diplomatic efforts to secure their release had been complicated because the two governments did not have ambassadors in each other's countries due to tensions between Ankara and Jerusalem.
