Farming in gaming refers to the process of replaying a specific area or series of areas with the goal of obtaining desirable items. This can include lootable objects such as chests, which may contain weapons, shields, class mods, or grenade mods. Players repeat this process by saving their progress and re-entering the game, allowing the chests to respawn and providing access to additional items. The Secret Armory of General Knox introduces larger chest types and new areas for farming, including the Crimson Armory. Another method of farming is through respawning boss characters, which can sometimes drop valuable loot without needing to reload or save. Examples of farmable bosses include Cawmmerax the Invincible in the General Knox DLC, who has a chance to drop Pearlescent loot. The Tundra Express in Borderlands 2 offers a developer's chest as an example of a farming area. I'm heading out to the dust, and I've got some tips for you: in Pokémon Moon, my FC is 4725-7977-5801, and my IGN is Tyea. If you've completed the required side quests, there are 5 legendaries you can farm pretty quickly in the dust. On GT, my username is Kmalding1045, and on PSN, it's K-malding 1045. You can find Maggie/Slagga in the dust, Gub/Sledge/Gunerang in the fridge run, Logan's/RollingThunder in Wilhelm, Bee in the arid badlands, Hornet in knuckledragger, Infinity in doc mercy, Btch/Sham in bunker, and BlackHole in opportunity. These locations are based on proximity to the boss, not ease of drop. The dust run has a possibility of 5 oranges, including veruc, white death, nukem, maggie/slagga, and hammer buster. The fridge run has three oranges and up to 6 chests, including two red dahl chests. If you're looking to fill out your arsenal in Borderlands 2, here are 10 of the best weapons in the game and where to find them: the Grog Nozzle, a unique Maliwan pistol that applies Slag, restores health with Lifesteal, and boosts Critical Damage. It's a reliable way to apply Slag and restore health, making it a must-have for True Vault Hunter mode. The Baby Maker, a legendary Tediore SMG, explodes like a grenade when reloaded and spawns extra grenades, making it great for clearing out crowds. Other notable weapons include the Conference Call, a legendary Hyperion shotgun that shoots multiple projectiles at once, and the Sandhawk, a legendary Dahl sniper rifle that fires multiple shots in a row. You can find these weapons in various locations throughout Pandora, including the Beard Makes The Man mission and the fridge run. With these guns, you'll be well-equipped to take on the challenges of Borderlands 2. throwing it does so much damage so quickly, than shooting! Why Use It:It's a great option for taking down big enemies and bosses. Simply unloading a few Baby Makers does enough damage to down large targets. The damage is also scalable with abilities, making it a great option for gun focused builds. What It Does Best:Close Range Combat- chucking the Baby Maker at close range works great. Unloading DPS- Shooting, throwing, and repeating is a quick process with big DPS output.Scaling: Luckily, reload damage works off of weapon damage and ammo - meaning abilities that improve either or also improve the Baby Maker's damage! Where To Get It:The Baby Maker can drop from every loot source. For best results, try farming Madam Von Bartlesby in Tundra Express. 8: Pimpernel Manufacturer: MaliwanWeapon Type: Sniper RifleRarity: Rare Element: Incendiary, Shock, Corrosive, or SlagUnique Effect: Splash Damage - bullets fan out into 5 shots after hitting a target. The Pimpernel comes from Captain Scarlett's DLC, and is a unique Sniper Rifle with splash damage built in. Each bullet splits into an extra bullet, which then splits into another 5 bullets. They fan out in a star pattern, and each bullet is capable of hitting enemies twice, with a damage reduction of 50%. Why Use It:Hitting enemies more than once is always good. Critically hitting them multiple times is even better. Aiming the Pimpernel slightly off target, and letting all those extra shots hit does massive damage. What It Does Best:Hitting Large Enemies: Branching shots will hit big enemies more than once, dishing out a lot of hurt. Long Range Combat: like any Sniper Rifle, this gun works best for distanced combat. Critical Hit Damage: multiple shots can hit for critical damage multiple times. Where To Get It:Simply complete the mission Don't Copy That Floppy in Washburne Refinery to get your copy of this gun. 7: Infinity Manufacturer: Vladof Weapon Type:PistolRarity: LegendaryElemental: Incendiary,Shock, or Corrosive.Unique Effect: Never uses ammo Unique Effect: Never needs to be reloaded. The Infinity Pistol is totally unique in that it never uses ammo and never needs to be reloaded. That's right: you can hold down the trigger and never have to let go. The Infinity spins away as you hold down the trigger, unleashing bullet after bullet. It's pretty straight forward otherwise, sporting good damage and able to carry an element. Why Use It?Never having to reload means the Infinity is always ready to use, great in Fight For Your Life or for farming and not wasting ammo. Coupled with an element, it also makes it a great way to lay in some elemental effects! What it Does Best:Safety Net: Need a quick hit in Fight For Your Life? The Infinity is perfect for those clutch moments where you don't have time to reload. Ammo Efficient: never using ammo is as efficient as you can get.Farming: It's a great option for clearing mobs, conserving ammo and time. Applying Elemental Damage: Consistent fire rate let's you lay down an element easily. Where To Find It:Infinite drops from any loot pool. For higher chances, look to Doc Mercy in Three Horns - Valley, or Lt. Angvar in The Burrows. 6: Amigo Sincero Manufacturer: JakobsWeapon Type: Sniper RifleRarity: Legendary Elemental: n/aUnique Effect: Ignores shields Instead of the Sniper Rifle, the Amigo Sincero can bypass shields and deal direct health damage to enemies, setting it apart from other guns like the Trespasser. With its higher base damage, it's one of the top Sniper Rifles in the game, making it a must-have for players who enjoy long-range combat, especially those building around Zer0. It excels at: * Ignoring Shields: The Amigo Sincero can skip shields and hit enemies directly, resulting in quicker kills. * Taking Down Big Enemies: Bypassing shields helps with taking down big enemies with high health pools. * Sniper Build Essential: This rifle brings a unique effect and great damage, making it essential for any sniper build. To obtain the Amigo Sincero, complete the BFFFs mission. Note that this gun cannot be farmed again. --- Manufacturer: Hyperion Weapon Type: Shotgun Rarity: Legendary Element: Incendiary, Shock, Corrosive, or Slag The Conference Call is a popular Shotgun that spawns two extra pellets with every shot, making it ideal for taking down large enemies and bosses. Its unique effect makes it especially useful for Gaige's Anarchy stacks and Zer0's running the Bore skill. To find the Conference Call, kill either The Warrior or the Handsome Sorcerer from Tiny Tina's Assault DLC. --- Manufacturer: Maliwan Weapon Type: Pistol Rarity: Unique Element: Corrosive, Incendiary, Shock, or Slag The Rubi is a unique Pistol that applies 12% Lifesteal to all damage when held. This means you'll heal from any damage source while using it. Its unique effect makes it easy to use and accessible. To find the Rubi, complete the mission Rakkaholics Anonymous and give Moxxi the booze to recover the pistol. Leech Grenade vs Fastball Manufacturer Savage Lee in Three Horns Divide often yields The Unkempt Harold loot drops; this is a viable spot for farming. You can also farm from other bosses, but the most effective approach is targeting specific items. Note that Terra spawns at level 52 and only allows access to legendary items if you're level 50 or higher. Utilizing "The Bee" method has been nerfed, so using it with high-rate-of-fire weapons may not be as beneficial. Furthermore, don't farm before reaching playthrough 2; instead, complete the necessary levels to maximize item drops.
