Best pop up ad blocker for android

Most pop-up ads are programmed in the JavaScript programming language. When you click on a web page with pop-up ads, the ads are activated when the page is loaded into your browser. The code for pop-up can be found within the code for the page itself. Pop-up blockers are programmed to scan the source code of the web page and look for any signs of a program that says your browser to open a new window. If the blocker finds this code, deactivate the command and get any pop-up. Not all open pop-ups when the web page charge, though. Some are activated when you click on a link or when you scroll the mouse on an activation site on the web page. A good pop-up blocker can also detect the code for these ads, although some are able to disable a pop- Up after starting to open. If you've ever seen a pop-up appears quickly and disappears when you have activated a pop-up blocker, it's what happened. The blocker detected the to after activating it, then disabled it.some pop-ups use other programming languages, such as the flash. A JavaScript pop-up block is powerless against flash pop-ups because it is a completely different programming language. To block Flash ads, you will need the flashblock program. These programs are similar to pop-up blockers as they disable commands found in the web pages that activate flash animation. You can find programs that incorporate JavaScript and advertising blockers of Flash in a single package. But not all pop-up blockers are created equal. Some of them are very good in blocking annoying pop-ups leaving only useful pop-ups - intelligent pop-up blockers. In general, intelligent pop-up blockers only disable pop-ups that open when a web page is loaded first in the browser - any pop-up that opens as user result by clicking a link remains in love. Blockers rely on user input to determine which pop-ups disabled and starting alone. There are no pop-up blocking programs are exactly the same, but in general the blocker asks the user if he wants to disable a particular pop-up when viewed for the first time on the user screen. If the user clicks "yes", then the blocker puts the offensive pop-up on a black list or list of ads that should be deactivated à €
